Subj: Shutters on Point Pinos Lighthouse

It is believed that the photograph you mention is that of Emily Fish. As you know the Questers are helping restore the interior of the lighthouse. There were nearly 400 visitors this weekend and with the help of several new docents all went smoothly.

The addition of the shutters has been mentioned by a number of people and is an example of further projects on the exterior of the building as we progress.

Bruce Handy informs me we have a potential funding source to restore the grounds with native plants.

The lighthouse project is a fine example of a cooperative effort between public and private organizations.
